A photograph of a dilapidated brick building in winter. The building's roof and the ground are covered in snow. The left side of the building is made of dark red brick with several windows. The right side is made of light-colored, peeling plaster with some small holes. Handwritten graffiti in black capital letters is on the plaster wall. In the background, there are bare trees and a modern apartment building under a cloudy sky. A black utility pole is on the right side of the frame.
